Lynn Kinnaman took her first stab at a mystery novel in 3rd grade. She went on to publish numerous magazine articles and was Editor/Contributing Writer for four Montana Travel Guides.

She's been published in Chicken Soup for the Soul and the Anthology for Cozy Noir.

Her book credits include Camping in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming (first edition), Southwest Montana Auto Adventures and other fiction and nonfiction.

She's editor of SW Montana Magazine and hosts the Get Published Conference for Writers.

Her cozy mystery series features Leah Clark, a woman who discovers she has a talent for finding trouble and a knack for solving crimes when she hits the road in her Airstream RV.

Lynn enjoys spending time with her family, cooking dishes that require chasing down exotic ingredients, and venturing forth to find her own adventures in her travel trailer accompanied by her canine companion, an opinionated Jack Russell named Sadie.
